Date: 01.04.08

The Phia Group, LLC announces its strategic alliance with Recovery Data Connect, LLC. As part of the relationship, The Phia Group will utilize Recovery Data Connect's national litigation database to uncover cases enabling The Phia Group to identify unique subrogation opportunities and increase recoveries for its customers. The service comes at no additional cost to The Phia Group's clients.

With the nation's largest proprietary database of personal-injury lawsuits, Recovery Data Connect's core competency is providing subrogation claim identification assistance. The company's patent-pending IData System identifies subrogation opportunities by matching plaintiffs with participants/patients. In addition to finding lawsuits involving traumatic incidents, RDC's system uniquely identifies subrogation opportunities in medical malpractice and mass tort cases, including tens of thousands of cases where the plaintiff has opted out of a class-action claim.

"The Phia Group is committed to continuing its role as a leader in the health care cost containment industry. In keeping with our innovative strategies, we want to have the best identification tools available," said The Phia Group's co-founder, Adam V. Russo, Esq. "Our proprietary software, The Phia System, enables us to identify many more recovery opportunities than the competition. With this new alliance, we will be able to track down even more cases that would otherwise never have been found. Recovery Data Connect fits into our model for excellence and by working with them we will ensure that our clients continue to have the highest recoveries in the industry."

Recovery Data Connect prides itself on providing accurate answers to the critical questions of who, when and where pertaining to subrogation claims. These answers enable Recovery Data Connect to identify potential subrogation claims, which enable clients to recover millions in lost revenue opportunities. "Recovery Data Connect is excited to expand our business to work with the Phia Group, one of the leaders of the health care cost containment industry, to help its clients maximize subrogation recoveries," said James R. McKown, founder and Chief Executive Officer of Recovery Data Connect.
